

I will surrender to the will of what becomes

As we are changing for the first time...

And the storm you
Stole a riddle or two to make you mine

As we became one, for the first time...

i will surrender to, falling through, I have to touch you

I tried to find a way to fight the sight of you
Heightened by the scarlet in my veins
And statues who, she calls out to
Are all but falling down again...

So we smile while we're dancing in the rain.

I am quiet and fine with riches inside
Brought on my knees before you

And you became night for the first time

And the shade of you Was so Silent through the doors to make you mine
And you became night for the first time

I tried to find a way to fight the sight of you
Quiet in the art in the haze
And her statues who she calls out to
....Are falling down again..

while we're dancing in the rain

We smile while we're dancing in the rain

Surrender to the statues who she call out to Surrender

And her statues who she calls out to

....Are falling down again..

while we're dancing in the rain

Don't you know...

I was the one to tell you...

Don't you know its all there was to tell...

Don't you know oh

I will believe you...

Don't you know the season of disease has come to end

We were caught into the storm of light ahead us

The time to dream through riot eyes instead of us

And cry and lift an angel for the blame

And so, and so, and so again